

Story A

Sarah's mom had high hopes for her. As a child, Sarah was an exceptional ballerina. Since beginning ballet, Sarah's mom has spent massive amounts of money on ballet lessons. When Sarah turned 16 years old, she decided to drop out of ballet completely. Her mom was furious, but couldn't convince Sarah to change her mind. Sarah told her mom that she appreciated her encouragement, but she just didn't enjoy doing ballet anymore.

Story B

Sarah and her friend Julie are hanging out one Saturday afternoon. Sarah said to her friend Julie: “Sometimes, my mom is such a pain in the neck! She makes me commute 2 hours to a special ballet school! And she makes me practice ballet 4 hours every single day. I really admire my mom and appreciate her challenging me to become a world-famous ballerina, but this sport is just not my fave anymore. Instead of enjoying ballet, I just hate it.”
