

What are your plans?

- Albert: Well, that's great, Ken. Teaching can be a good profession. What kind of teacher do you want to be? 1
- Ken: I'm sure I want to be a teacher, but I don't know. I could be a math or a chemistry teacher. I really like both subjects, and I could be happy teaching either one. Luckily I still have time to decide. 5
- Albert: What about you, Ruth? You study so hard that you must want to be a teacher, too!
- Ruth: Well, I study hard because I'll need a scholarship for law school. It's expensive, and I need all the money I can get. But with my grades being so high, I think I may get a scholarship, and then my dream of being a lawyer will come true at least. What's your dream, Albert? 10
- Albert: You might not believe this, but I may become an artist.
- Ken: But you're a great football player! You should go into professional football!
- Albert: I know that's what everybody thinks I should do, and I know I'll make a lot of money if I do. But I just might surprise everybody and be an artist.
- June: I believe you, Albert. You could become a famous artist. You're strong and sensitive. 15
- Mario: Give me a break, June. I'm strong and sensitive too.
- June: You may be both, Mario, but you aren't planning to be an artist or even a football player as far as I know.
- Mario: Of course not. Everybody knows I'll be a cook in my father's Italian restaurant. I love cooking, and I know I'll be a good cook for sure. I'll be a better cook than you! 20
- June: That's fine with me, Mario. Pilots don't have to be good cooks. I'll get all my gourmet meals on airplanes!
- Ken: You want to be a pilot? You're kidding!
- June: I certainly am not kidding! I've wanted to pilot planes and helicopters ever since my uncle took me up in his plane. And I might get a chance at it, if I can convince my uncle to give me a job at the airport. 25
